

April 24, 2009

"Let the little children come to Me, and don't stop them, because the kingdom of God belongs to such as these," Luke 18:16b

Good news Kermit

Do you have a map or maybe a globe? We want to find Sumatra. It's an island right on the equator—in the Indian Ocean—halfway around the world from the United States. It's the island of Sumatra, Indonesia. There are some people who live along a river in the southeastern part of the island. They are called the Komering people.

The Komering people travel on the river. They bathe in it and wash their clothes in it. Yes, fish in it too. In the past, each Komering village chose a person to be their "Kermit." A Kermit was someone who spread the local news. They walked through the village, from house to house, and let everyone know what they needed to know.

Today, the Komering people do not know about Jesus. Wouldn't it be great if someone in every village became their Good News Kermit? A Good News Kermit would go house to house and spread the Good News of Jesus Christ. Please pray for the Komering people and their need for Jesus.

<http://kompray.imb.org>